

United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit

BRIEF FOR APPELLANT

77-1175

To be argued by
JURIS G. CEDERBAUMS

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS
FOR THE SECOND CIRCUIT

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Appellee,

- v -

FRANCOIS CHIAPPE,

Appellant.

ON APPEAL FROM THE UNITED STATES
DISTRICT COURT FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

BRIEF FOR APPELLANT FRANCOIS CHIAPPE

JURIS G. CEDERBAUMS
Attorney for Appellant,
Francois Chiappe
30 Broad Street
New York, New York 10004
(212) 425-1060

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Page
Preliminary Statement.....	1
Statement of Facts.....	2
ARGUMENT:
POINT I - By Deliberately Misleading the Grand Jury Through the Manipulation of the Only Witness, the Prosecutor Fraudulently Obtained an Indictment Against Appellant Which he Knew was Barred by the Statute of Limitations.....	8
POINT II - Because Appellant's Presence for Trial was Secured by Deliberately Unnecessary and Illegal Actions of the Government Through its Agents, the Jurisdiction of the District Court Should be Voided.....	12
POINT III - By the Admission of Post Conspiracy Evidence Insufficiently Connected to the Crime-- and Known by the Prosecutor to be Totally Unrelated--the Jury was Unfairly Prejudiced and Appellant was Denied a Fair Trial.....	23
POINT IV - Because the Government Deliberately Failed to Produce Documents Relative to the Testimony of a Crucial Witness, Appellant was Denied a Fair Trial.....	29
CONCLUSION:
Because Appellant was Denied Due Process of Law and Basic Fairness of all Stages of the Proceedings Against him, the Judgment Must be Reversed, and the Indictment Dismissed.....	42

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the prosecutor deliberately misled the Grand Jury into returning an indictment which he knew was barred by the statute of limitations?
2. Whether appellant's presence at trial was secured by deliberately unnecessary and illegal actions of the government through its agents, thus voiding jurisdiction?
3. Whether the admission of post-conspiracy evidence insufficiently connected to the crime--and known by the prosecutor to be totally unrelated--unfairly prejudiced the jury and denied appellant a fair trial?
4. Whether the deliberate failure of the government to produce documents relative to the testimony of a crucial witness denied appellant a fair trial?

TABLE OF CASES AND AUTHORITIES

	Page
Brady v. Maryland , 373 U.S. 83 (1963).....	19, 32, 41
Chambers v. Mississippi , 410 U.S. 284 (1973).....	11
Columbe v. Connecticut , 367 U.S. 56 (1961).....	34
Corpus v. Beto , 469 F.2d 953 (5th Cir. 1973).....	34
Frisbie v. Collins , 342 U.S. 519 (1952).....	12
Giglio v. U.S. , 405 U.S. 150 (1972).....	33
Kerr v. Illinois , 119 U.S. 436 (1886).....	12
Lujan v. Gengler , 510 F.2d 62 (2d Cir. 1975).....	12
McNabb v. United States , 318 U.S. 332 (1943).....	20
Rochin v. California , 342 U.S. 165 (1952).....	17, 20
Silverthorne Lumber Co. v. United States , 251 U.S. 385 (1920)..	22
United States v. Agurs , 96 S.Ct. 2392 (1976).....	34
United States v. Badalmante and Yagid , 507 F.2d 12 (2d Cir. 1974).....	34
United States v. Bermudez , 526 F.2d 89 (2d Cir. 1975).....	25
United States v. Bryant , 439 F.2d 642 (D.C. Cir. 1971).....	40
United States v. Consolidated Laundries Corp. , 291 F.2d 563 (2d Cir. 1961).....	24
United States v. Fried , 486 F.2d 201 (2d Cir. 1974).....	37

TABLES OF CASES AND AUTHORITIES (Cont'd.)

	Page
United States v. Gerard , 491 F.2d 1300 (9th Cir. 1974).....	34
United States v. Kaplan , 470 F.2d 100 (7th Cir. 1972).....	38
United States v. Keogh , 391 F.2d 138 (2d Cir. 1968).....	32
United States v. Lira , 515 F.2d 68 (2d Cir. 1975).....	12, 21
United States v. Magnano , 543 F.2d 431 (2d Cir. 1974).....	25
United States v. Morell , 524 F.2d 550 (2d Cir. 1975).....	41
United States v. Napue , 360 U.S. 264 (1959).....	33, 34
United States v. Papadakis , 510 F.2d 287 (2d Cir. 1975).....	25
United States v. Pollack , 534 F.2d 964 (D.C. Cir. 1976).....	40
United States v. Puco , 338 F.Supp. 1252 (S.D.N.Y. 1974).....	34
United States v. Ravich , 421 F.2d 1196 (2d Cir. 1970).....	26
United States v. Robinson , 544 F.2d 611 (2d Cir. 1976).....	23
United States v. Rosner , 516 F.2d 269 (2d Cir. 1975).....	38
United States v. Seijo , 514 F.2d 1357 (2d Cir. 1975).....	33, 38
United States v. Toscanino , 500 F.2d 267 (2d Cir. 1974).....	12, 13, 20
United States v. Tramunti , 513 F.2d 1087 (2d Cir. 1975).....	25
Woodcock v. Amarall , 511 F.2d 985 (1st Cir. 1974).....	41
ABA Standards for Discovery and Procedure Before Trial §2.1 (1970).....	34

TABLE OF CASES AND AUTHORITIES (Cont'd.)

	Page
ABA Standards Relating to the Prosecution and Defense Function §3.11 (1971).....	34
American Law Institute, Restatement of Law Second, Foreign Relations Law of the United States, §§178-182 (1965).....	16, 17
Note: The Greening of a Poisonous Tree: The Exclusionary Rule and Federal Jurisdiction Over Foreign Suspects Abducted by Government Agents 50 N. Y. U. Law Rev. 681 (June 1975).....	12
United States Senate, Committee on Government Operation, Permanent Sub-committee on Investigations, Interim Report on Federal Narcotics Enforcement Report No. 94-1039 (July 19, 1976).....	13
House of Representatives, Committee on International Relations, Sub-committee on International and Military Affairs (April 29, 30, 1975; October 22, 1975; January 27, 1976; June 29, 1976).....	13
United States Code, Title 18, Section 2.....	18
Wigmore, Evidence (3d Ed. 1940).....	26

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS
FOR THE SECOND CIRCUIT

-----x
UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Appellee,

- v -

FRANCOIS CHIAPPE,

Appellant.
-----x

APPELLANT'S BRIEF

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is an appeal from a judgment of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York (Mishler, C.J.) entered on March 4, 1977 sentencing appellant to a term of imprisonment of twenty years and a fine of Twenty Thousand ($20,000.00) Dollars upon his conviction after trial of conspiracy to violate the narcotics laws (21 U.S.C. §§173 and 174), and denying, inter alia appellant's claim that the Government had obtained jurisdiction over him by use of deliberate, unnecessary and unreasonable conduct amounting to a patent violation of due process principles, and a motion for a new trial.

Appellant is presently incarcerated pursuant to the judgment.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

On February 15, 1968, appellant and eight other defendants were indicted for narcotics conspiracy violations.* Subsequently, extradition attempts to secure the appellant were set into motion. They proved to be fruitless, as they were denied by the Argentine Government on May 28, 1973.

Soon after the new military junta of General Navale came into power, the United States Government again proceeded to attempt to secure the appellant's presence in the United States for trial.

The eventually made arrangements included a trip to Buenos Aires by Assistant United States Attorney in charge of Narcotics Prosecution, Bernard Fried, accompanied by a State Department Legal Adviser, Mr. Louis Fields. The two met with U.S. Ambassador Robert G. Hill and DEA Agents located in the Buenos Aires branch regarding the obtaining of appellant and others wanted for prosecution for narcotics violations.

The same group--absent Mr. Fried--then met with the Argentine Minister of the Interior to demand the fugitives. The group then reported back to Mr. Fried that the Argentine Minister had assured them that expulsions would be forthcoming, pending cabinet approval. Mr. Fried was further informed that the Minister would then appoint an official to deal directly with the Special DEA Agent In Charge, Mr. Tryal, to make all necessary arrangements for the securing of appellant, Chiappe, and the others into United States custody.

*All the defendants were accused of violations of 21 U.S.C. §§173, 174. The indictment incorporated a separate conspiracy as to some defendants involving violations of Sections 812, 841(a)(1), 841(l)(A), 952(a), 960(a)(1) and 960(b)(1), which appellant was not part of and for which he was not tried.

On May 21, 1976, Chiappe and his wife were driving along the street in their car, having just left their daughter at school. Suddenly, their car was surrounded by three cars out of which came men dressed in civilian clothes.* These men then proceeded to brutalize Chiappe and his wife in order to gain custody of him. Specifically, he was beaten with gun butts, clubs, choked with a rope, and burned with lighted cigarettes until he, along with the seat of his car, were extracted. As a result of the kidnapping, he suffered severe lacerations, bruises, and the loss of most of his upper teeth, which were reduced to shards.

He was then bound hand and foot, blindfolded, injected with sedative drugs, and transported to a location some distance away by van and airplane. He was also soon thereafter straight-jacketed. The blindfold and straight-jacket were never removed at any time until well into the flight to the United States, some six days later.

Chiappe testified that during the next six days he was secured to what he believes was the foot of a bed, which he shared with three other individuals. He subsequently learned that two of the other prisoners were his co-defendant

*The identities of these Argentine Federal Police are concededly known by the DEA and the U.S. Attorney. Mrs. Chiappe testified there were well-dressed strangers, who spoke English, present. Another civilian witness also testified to the presence of these men who seemed to be advising the man in charge. When the local police arrived, certain papers were flashed, and they left.

Miguel Russo, and one Yolanda Sarmiento. Chiappe did not know the identity of the fourth individual, but had heard from Russo and Sarmiento that this man had been shot to death in Argentina.* During these six days, Chiappe testified that he was deprived of any significant food, water, or toilet facilities, and was repeatedly physically abused while continually straight-jacketed and blindfolded.

Chiappe also testified that during some of these periods he heard English being spoken, but that he did not understand it or know the source of it. He also testified that either on the day of his departure to the U.S. or the day immediately before, his blindfold slipped while he was being pushed during a transfer, and he saw a man whom he later recognized in the U.S. Attorney's Office to be DEA Agent Polumbo. He did not state that any beatings were taking place at that time.

About the same time as Chiappe was being abducted from the streets of LaFalda, arrangements were being made in the United States for the Charter of a Braniff Airlines DC-8 and the sending of this plane, with almost 20 DEA agents aboard, to Buenos Aires to pick up its cargo of abducted fugitives.

*This testimony by appellant was rejected by the Court, despite the fact that the Government did not call Russo or Sarmiento to rebut it. The failure to call Sarmiento was significant, since she was cooperating with the Government. She had, in fact, testified at other trials, and was given a first year sentence in consideration for her services.

 This was denied by DEA Agent Polumbo.

Agent Polumbo testified these arrangements were made 10 or 11 days before arrival. Agent Corcoran said about one week before arrival.

While the DC-8 and the agents it was bearing was at the Buenos Aires Airport, the three fugitives were spirited aboard by Argentine officials into the waiting hands of the DEA.

It is undisputed that Chiappe's blindfold and straight-jacket were not removed until about 15 or 20 minutes into the return flight to the United States. No need for such restraint was ever demonstrated or suggested; this was simply gratuitously done on "orders."

Upon his arrival in the United States on May 27, 1976, Chiappe was brought directly to the U.S. Attorney's Office for questioning, and from there to face arraignment in the District Court. At the arraignment in the District Court, the judge--in the absence of counsel--advised the defendant of his rights, told him he should wait to see a lawyer before speaking to anyone, and then proceeded to question him about whether he had been mistreated by anyone.*

It was only on June 4, 1977, when counsel was present, that the wounds sustained by Chiappe--by then about two weeks old-- were first described in the record by the Court.

The bulk of the Government's case at trial came from the lips of Michel Nicoli, an unindicted co-conspirator. Suffice it to say that his testimony at trial was severely impeached, and was significantly at variance with his prior testimony concerning the crucial final transaction which brought the case within the statute of limitations.

*It is submitted that this questioning by the Court was improper, misleading, and designed to confuse a man who was non-English speaking, and had just suffered a week of sensory deprivation and brutality. The record attests to this conclusion. (Minutes of May 27, 1976).

The government then called an Argentine Police Officer, Borsalino, to testify concerning an arrest he made of appellant in May of 1968, some three months after the conspiracy ended, under the government's theory. This policeman basically testified that on March 17, 1968 he arrested Chiappe and his wife as suspects in a bank robbery investigation, and that Mrs. Chiappe, at the time of arrest in the street, was in possession of $19,000.00 in U.S. currency. He also testified that Chiappe produced false identification papers and a false passport at the time of his arrest in the street. Borsalino capped his testimony by saying that Chiappe immediately consented to a search of his apartment, which search produced several photographs subsequently introduced into evidence.

Significantly, Chiappe testified at the hearing that the arrest took place on March 15, 1968, his birthday. He further swore that he was brutally tortured by means of electricity being applied to sensitive parts of his body such as his ears, breasts, anus, and testicles for a period of two days. Chiappe also stated that he had complained of this torture to the Argentine judge, and that the items in question were only found in a search of the room he and his wife occupied in his in-law's house after the torture. The Court rejected Chiappe's testimony as incredible.

Shortly after the trial--and almost up to the date of sentence--counsel received documents from Argentina taken from the Argentine bank robbery file. Such documents were specifically requested by the Court and counsel during Borsalino's testimony at trial, and were never produced by the U. S. Attorney, even though he was aware of their existence and had personally examined them in Argentina in the presence of an Argentine judge, who also testified in person at the hearing.

These documents revealed the true nature of the 1968 arrest, including the dismissal of the bank robbery charges against appellant, and the return of the $19,000.00 to his wife as being legitimately hers. Most importantly, they demonstrated Chiappe's torture, and refuted significant points of Borsalino's testimony.

The motions for a new trial made on the basis of these documents were summarily denied by the Court without a hearing.

POINT I

BY DELIBERATELY MISLEADING THE GRAND JURY THROUGH THE MANIPULATION OF THE TESTIMONY OF THE ONLY WITNESS, THE PROSECUTOR FRAUDULENTLY OBTAINED AN INDICTMENT AGAINST APPELLANT WHICH HE KNEW WAS BARRED BY THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

The presentation of the case to the Grand Jury took place on February 15, 1973, one day before the expiration of the statute of limitations*.

The only witness before the Grand Jury was co-conspirator Michel Nicoli, the Government's main witness at trial.

The witness was led in the most egregious manner through testimony concerning two separate conspiracies in which he was involved. Through its extensive interviews of Nicoli from December 1972 until the time of his testimony before the Grand Jury, the Government knew that Nicoli stated repeatedly that his conspiracy with appellant terminated in December of 1967. This is reflected in the 3500 materials made available to counsel at trial (T. 571). See Government's exhibits 3500-4 Paragraphs 52, 47; 3500-5 Page 9.

More specifically, concerning February 1968--the crucial last consummated three (3) kilo trip testified to by Nicoli at trial, which brought the case within the statute of limitations--Nicoli testified as follows:

Q. During February of 1968 did you enter the United States at Miami, Florida in order to make preparations for this forty kilogram delivery?

*On the same day the indictment was filed, the arrest warrant for appellant was issued, and the indictment was ordered sealed.

A. Yes.

Q. At that time were you stopped by Customs and questioned?

A. Yes.

Q. Shortly thereafter, did you depart from Miami to New York?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ultimately go back to South America without accomplishing anything?

A. Yes.

(Grand Jury Minutes of 2/15/68, P.10)

This is in direct conflict with his oral testimony--highlighted by the trial judge during the instructions to the jury regarding the statute of limitations--that on February 14, 1968 he went to Miami to pick up 3 kilos for delivery to New York; that he was detained by customs in Miami; that he went to New York without picking up the heroin; that his buyer sent someone to Miami who picked up the drugs; that he sold it in New York, and departed for Buenos Aires on February 16, 1968 where he met Rossi and split the money.

Yet, knowing from over two months of exhaustive interviews of Nicoli that the conspiracy involving Nicoli and appellant ended in December of 1967, the prosecutor conveniently omitted asking Nicoli when he broke up with appellant, and proceeded to lead him through testimony which indicated only one continuous conspiracy.

Interestingly enough, when counsel cross-examined the witness based on these same debriefing reports at trial, before a petit jury, the U.S. Attorney made the following objection (T. 588):

MR. SCHLAM: These are matters which concern this witness' relationship with Rossi, after by his own testimony, he no longer was associated with Chiappe. And I think that this is highly confusing as far as the jury is concerned. It serves no purpose because it doesn't impeach anything that he said on direct examination.

And I think the only purpose that I can see for this type of cross-examination is to obfuscate the case as far as the jury is concerned.

From the record of the Grand Jury proceedings, it is clear that the prosecutor at that time deliberately sought to "confuse" and "obfuscate the case as far as the jury is concerned".

Thus, the prosecutor deliberately misled the Grand Jury into voting the indictment against the defendant on which he was tried.* He never instructed the Grand Jury that an indictment against appellant would be barred by the statute of limitations. In addition, he deliberately led Nicoli through his examination before the Grand Jury and thus was able to prevent the witness from telling the Grand Jury that the conspiracy involving himself and appellant ended in December of 1967.

*Curiously, a second indictment 73 Cr. 239, was filed on March 5, 1968. This indictment was virtually identical as concerns appellant. The only difference was the addition of certain overt acts as concerns the second, separate conspiracy in which Nicoli was involved. The second indictment was apparently handed down by a different Grand Jury, as appears from the signatures of the foremen. Only one set of minutes appeared in the 3500 materials.

The prejudice to appellant is enormous. He was brought to trial on this fraudulently obtained indictment more than three (3) years later, by which time witness Nicoli had conformed his testimony to the needs of the statute of limitations.

Because of the deliberate misconduct of the Assistant United States Attorney, appellant was again denied his basic due process right to a fair trial, Chambers v. Mississippi, 410 U.S. 284 (1972). This Court, through its supervisory powers over the District Courts, should not permit the government to benefit from so aggravated an instance of prosecutorial misconduct, and should dismiss the indictment with prejudice.

POINT II

BECAUSE APPELLANT'S PRESENCE FOR TRIAL WAS SECURED BY DELIBERATELY UNNECESSARY AND ILLEGAL ACTIONS OF THE GOVERNMENT THROUGH ITS AGENTS, THE JURISDICTION OF THE DISTRICT COURT SHOULD BE VOIDED.

In 1974, this Court decided the landmark case of United States v. Toscanino, 500 F.2d 267 (2d Cir. 1974). The sweeping language of Toscanino declared that the antiquated doctrines of Ker v. Illinois, 119 U.S. 436 (1886) and Frisbie v. Collins, 342 U.S. 519 (1952) were inconsistent with recent judicial censure of government illegality in law enforcement, resulting in the application of the exclusionary rule. This Court held these standards applicable to the government sponsored abductions of felony suspects.

Yet, in two cases which soon followed Toscanino*, this Court made an unfortunate and unnecessary emasculation of the Toscanino holding which one commentator has characterized as the retreat which became a rout. It was unfortunate in that the prediction made in the concurring opinion of Judge Oakes in Lira, has now come true; defendants have continued to arrive in the United States after having been abused and abducted in foreign countries. The trend is notorious and highly publicized, as witnessed by the Newsweek article which appeared on August 16, 1976. A fair reading of this article, which describes several recent abductions-- including a highly detailed (and illustrated) account of the kidnapping of appellant Francois Chiappe--reveals the cynical attitude of the law enforcement agencies (particularly the DEA), their casual, even disparaging attitude to the law and their expressed attitude that the ends justify the means. The writers of this widely read article leave the reader with the rhetorical question of whether such wholesale lawbreaking by the United States government is not, indeed, too high a price to pay for the actual results obtained, and asks who the real criminals in fact are.

*Lujan v. Gengler, 510 F.2d 62 (2d Cir. 1975), United States v. Lira, 515 F.2d 68 (2d Cir. 1975).

The Greening of a Poisonous Tree: The Exclusionary Rule and Federal Jurisdiction over Foreign Suspects Abducted by Government Agents." 50 N.Y.U. Law Review 681 (June 1975). Just how far we have come full circle is reflected in the fact that the same District Court which denied Toscanino's claim has denied appellant Chiappe's claim, citing the same authority: Ker and Frisbie.

515 F.2d 68 at 73.

This, then has been the seed spawned by this court's failure to live up to the promise of Toscanino. Moreover, it is one which continues to grow and flourish. The public attitude of discontent with the performance of the DEA is reflected in the lengthy investigations of this organization by a Committee of Congress*, a Committee of the Senate, and the recent indications and public statements of the newly appointed Attorney General, the Hon. Griffin Bell, to the effect that the DEA may well be eliminated.

*House of Representatives, Committee on International Relations, Subcommittee on International and Military Affairs (April 29, 30, 1975; Oct. 22, 1975; January 27, 1971; June 29, 1976).

United States Senate, Committee on Government Operations Permanent Sub-Committee on Investigations, Interim Report on Federal Narcotics Enforcement Report No. 94-1039 (July 19, 1976).

U. S. Senate Hearings on the Judiciary on Confirmation of Nomination, January 1977. Press Briefing, February 10, 1977, Wash., D.C. Q & A Session with Employees of Department of Justice, Wash., D.C., March 19, 1977. Press Conference, Wash., D.C., March 18, 1977.

Yet, the problem is that much exacerbated by the fact that the DEA is unique among police organizations in that it is an arm of the prosecuting agency, the United States Attorney. The system of checks and balances which exist between local prosecuting agencies and police departments, and a relatively unbiased and detached look at the methods of making cases and gathering evidence is greatly reduced, if not entirely eliminated, when each arm is part of the same body. The recognition of the inherent danger that exists in not exposing wrong doings in one section which may rather be absorbed within the totality of the system, may well be one of the primary reasons for the desire by the Attorney General to eliminate the DEA.

The facts brought out at the hearing amply support appellant's claim that his kidnapping from Argentina was produced, directed, and carried to its inevitable conclusion by agents of the United States Government. Thus, it is clear that the United States Government was unsuccessful in obtaining appellant by extradition since early 1973*. The United States Government then waited until the military junta of General Videla took power and on April 28, 1976 sent Assistant United States Attorney Bernard Fried, Chief of the Narcotics Section in the Eastern District and Louis Fields, a legal advisor to the State Department, to personally meet with the local DEA agents, the U.S. Ambassador, Mr. Robert Hill, who then met with the Argentine Minister of the Interior, and informed the Argentine Authorities as to who was wanted by the United States. Finally, Assistant United States Attorney Fried's memo concerning these meetings (Gov. Ex. 3 at hearing) clearly states: "Assuming that the authority [to expel] is given, then the minister will appoint an official to deal directly with S. A. I. C. Tryal to make all necessary arrangements." (emphasis added).

*Appellant had been provisionally arrested by Argentine authorities in September 1972; he was released on May 28, 1973 when the Argentine Courts affirmed the refusal of the extradition for him requested by the U.S. Government.

Subsequently, on May 21, 1977, appellant was brutally beaten and arrested by unidentified men in civilian clothes and illegally* held incommunicado with other prisoners until arrangements could be made for the DEA to arrive en masse in Argentina on May 26, 1976, in a chartered Braniff jet aircraft, in order to pick up their prisoners. Additionally, the expulsion order eventually presented to the U.S. Attorney was illegal on its face.

It is further undisputed that shortly after his initial abduction on *Appellant's local counsel had gone to an Argentine Court and secured a writ of habeas corpus. However, the ministry of the Interior claimed they knew nothing of his abduction, thus frustrating the action of the court.

It is clear that the prisoners were held incommunicado to await the arrival of the DEA, and for no other reason. Both agent Polumbo and agent Corcoran, testified at the hearing that arrangements for the trip and the charter of the jet aircraft were made "about a week" prior to their arrival in Argentina.

The expulsion order contained an individual identification number which was not that of Chiappe. In fact, it was so totally different (7159174 as opposed to 92001957) that such disparity could not be attributed to error. Additionally, Chiappe was never afforded an appeal of the decree to the Courts, as provided by law. More incredibly, he was said to have "chosen" to be expelled to the United States, which has sought to extradite him for over three years.

May 21, 1976 in the streets of LaFalda, appellant was blindfolded and straight-jacketed. This is the condition in which the DEA agents received him, and this is the condition in which he was kept by them until at least 15 minutes into the flight to the United States. No necessity for this restraint was ever demonstrated, other than that these were the "orders received from superiors." One wonders, indeed, why a straight-jacket, and, more particularly, a blindfold was necessary, unless there was something that everyone wanted to make sure that Chiappe did not see, in addition to keeping him disoriented.

Sensory deprivation is a recognized form of torture, and the mere fact that the DEA agents kept him in this condition from the time he was received, until well into the flight to the U.S. --absent anything else--makes them guilty of mistreatment and denial of procedural justice as defined in the Foreign Relations Law of the United States.* This period of an hour or *American Law Institute, Restatement of Law Second, Foreign Relations Law of the United States, Secs. 178-182 (1965).

Chapter 2: INADEQUATE ADMINISTRATION OF LAW

Topic 1. Denial of Procedural Justice

§178. Denial of Procedural Justice defined as used in the Restatement of this subject, "denial of procedural justice" means conduct, attributable to a state and causing injury to an alien, that departs from the international standard of justice specified in §165 with respect to the procedure followed in enforcement of the state's law as it effects the alien in criminal, civil or administrative proceedings, including the determination of his rights against, or obligations to, other persons.

§179 Arrest and Detention

* * *

(3) Mistreatment of an alien in the course of arrest or during detention is a denial of procedural justice.

(Cont'd.)

so before the take-off of the jet to the United States was but a continuation of the treatment Chiappe had been subjected to for the six previous days while awaiting the arrival of the aircraft and the DEA agents. This, indeed, is conduct which "shocks the conscience."*

It is further clear that the Argentine federal police, who actually abducted Chiappe, tortured him and held him incommunicado to await the arrival of the chartered jet. A warrant had been issued in February of 1973 for Chiappe's arrest. After the failure of the extradition proceedings, it became clear that the arrest could not be effected directly by the DEA. Hence, arrangements were made for the Argentines through the Ministry of the Interior, to actually make the arrest, and then hold Chiappe until arrangements could be made to transport him to the United States. These persons, whose identities were known to the Buenos Aires Office of the DEA, were thus the agents of the DEA. How can this Court ignore the criminal conduct of the DEA under the standards applied daily to "civilian" defendants

(footnote continued)

(b) Mistreatment: Examples of mistreatment within the meaning of subsection (3) are: unnecessary injury during arrest, the compelling of unnecessary physical exertion harmful to health, detention in unsanitary conditions, and torture of any kind, whether physical or mental. Restrictive measures that have no purpose of preventing escape, protecting the safety or security of the arresting officials, or maintaining reasonable rules of prison discipline, but are in the nature of punishment for conduct occurring prior to arrest, are wrongful under international law, since punishment is warranted only after conviction.

*Rochin v. California, 342 U.S. 165 (1952) cited in Toscanino, 500 F.2d at 281.

in the District Courts?* Neither of the last two arguments were dealt with by the District Court.

In defendant's motion papers dated January 7, 1977, it was argued that in cases such as this, the burden of proof--once the defendant has met the burden of going forward--should be shifted to the Government to prove that jurisdiction was properly obtained. This is because by the very nature of the abduction and his physical abuse and sensory deprivation, the defendant is not able to prove how the abduction took place. That knowledge rests exclusively within the province of the abductors--in this case the Argentines and the DEA. Thus, the burden cannot be placed on appellant to prove facts which, of necessity, are not within his power to prove. The shifting of the burden of proof is not unreasonable in light of the fact that in other instances where the exclusionary rule may be put into operation, e.g. search and seizure, confession, the burden of proof does rest in the Government.

In an attempt to bring further evidence before the Court which came out only after the testimony offered by DEA agents and Assistant United States

Attorney Bernard Fried, Appellant, in his motion and memorandum dated

*Title 18 U.S.C. Section 2, which reads as follows:

(a) Whoever commits an offense against the United States or aids, abets, counsels, commands, induces, or procures its commission is punishable as a principal.

(b) Whoever willfully causes an act to be done which if directly performed by him or another would be an offense against the United States, is punishable as a principal.

Item 40 record on appeal.

January 14, 1977* requested the testimony of additional witnesses who were either directly involved in the events in question, or were privy to information necessary to establish appellant's claim that he was kidnapped and physically abused by or at the direction of American agents.

It is submitted that the denial of these motions by the District Court placed an unfair--if not impossible--burden on the appellant which amounts to a denial of due process of the law. This argument comes within the spirit of such basic fairness cases as Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963). This information, of course, has nothing to do with the question of defendant's guilt or innocence. Rather, it goes to the more fundamental question of whether he should have been before the Court at all to face that determination.

A most distressing aspect of this case is that the Government--through the U.S. Attorney and its investigative arm, the DEA-- has acted under the *Item 41 record on appeal.

The information and witnesses sought were the following:

- a) all DEA agents who went to Argentina in connection with the arrest of the defendant,
- b) all DEA agents located in Buenos Aires branch,
- c) all Argentine police officers or their agents who participated in the abduction of Mr. Chiappe and his subsequent detention and torture prior to his transfer to the DC-8 which took him to the United States of America,
- d) United States Ambassador to Argentina, Robert C. Hill,
- e) DEA head Peter Bensinger,
- f) all State Department and DEA records dealing with the planning and actual abduction of Francois Chiappe.

The Court is urged to read the attached memorandum of law for more of the argument relevant to the motion made.

"color of law" after its failures within the law, and deliberately waited until the change in government occurred in Argentina. Once this military regime came into power, the DEA got what it wanted. But consider that in this case the U.S. Attorney and the DEA collaborated with a regime which has been officially labelled by our President and Congress as one which consistently violates basic human rights. One need only glance at some of the hundreds of instances reported in the media to appreciate the extent to which this designation is amply deserved.* Yet this is the same regime with which the U.S. Attorney and the DEA collaborated in this enterprise, and from whose dirty work--at their request--they now seek to profit, and upon which they now seek the absolution and blessing of this Court. Clearly, the Court could not seek as a technicality the official protest of the government of Argentina under these present and then-existing circumstances.

Even if this Court should find that the appellant was not subjected to an unconstitutional seizure under Toscanino standards, or conduct which falls under the Rochin standard, it is urged that basic fairness dictates that the Court exercise its supervisory authority over the District Court by holding that although the government's actions may have fallen short of

*See, for example: Bribery and Human Rights, Saturday Review, April 2, 1977; New York Daily News, February 25, 1977, p. 10, col. 1; New York Times, January 31, 1977; New York Times, June 28, 1976, New York Daily News, September 23, 1976; New York Times, June 22, 1976, p. 26, Col. 8; New York Times, November 23, 1976, p. 5; New York Times, January 2, 1977, p. 1, col. 2.

500 F.2d at 275

McNabb v. United States, 318 U.S. 332 (1943) cited with approval in Toscanino, 500 F.2d at 276.

directly infringing a constitutional right of the appellant, they nevertheless debased the process of justice, and abused and degraded the District Court's criminal process.

Indeed, as stated earlier, Judge Oakes' prediction in Lira has come true, the Government through the DEA has become bolder than ever in its "war" against international drug traffickers. One can only remember what recent history demonstrated as regards the high moral goals and law tactics of the Plumbers Unit in their "war" against domestic security leaks.

The consideration of efficacy underlying the exclusionary rule support a divestiture of jurisdiction in cases such as the one at bar. The deterrence of official misconduct would be nobly served, if for no other reason than that abductions such as appellant's require careful planning and significant expense. More importantly, exclusion would discourage government conduct which forces the judiciary into the posture of knowing and approving accomplices to conduct which may violate fundamental protections of the Constitution, but most importantly, go against every notion of fundamental fairness. The short-term goal of increased police efficiency* is too high a price to pay in lieu of requiring the Government to conform its police practices, both at home and abroad, at the very inception of a criminal prosecution.

*A dubious conclusion when one considers the projected move at abolition of the DEA by Attorney General Bell, instigated--to a great extent--by the lack of efficiency of the DEA and its poor performance record. (See Senate Hearing Summary, July 19, 1976, pages .) Federal Narcotics Enforcement, Interim Report of the Committee on Government Operations, United States Senate, made by its Permanent Sub-committee on Investigations, July 19, 1976, pp. 41-44.

This Court, in the recent past, has viewed only extreme physical abuse as a deprivation of due process, yet an individual who faces long periods of imprisonment is "injured" far more than one who is physically abused. If this argument were to be consistently applied, Courts would admit fruits of an illegal search and seizure where the "injury" would be no greater than that which a defendant would endure through a lawful search. This argument, of course, has been explicitly rejected.*

Basic fairness dictates that this Court should not tolerate the conduct of the Government in this case (and many others) and should divest the District Court of its jurisdiction.

*Silverthorne Lumber Co. v. United States, 251 U.S. 385 (1920).

POINT III

BY THE ADMISSION OF POST CONSPIRACY
EVIDENCE INSUFFICIENTLY CONNECTED TO THE CRIME--AND KNOWN BY THE PROSECUTOR TO BE TOTALLY UNRELATED-- THE JURY WAS UNFAIRLY PREJUDICED. AND APPELLANT WAS DENIED A FAIR TRIAL.

By the Government's own theory of the case, the conspiracy involving appellant terminated as of February 16, 1968. Yet, the Court permitted to be introduced evidence through an Argentine Police Officer, that was devastating in its unduly prejudiced effect on the jury.

Officer Borsaline testified that on the 17th of May, 1968 he arrested appellant and his wife in the street, and that appellant produced a false passport and identification papers, and that a search of his wife's purse produced $19,000.00 in U.S. currency. When questioned by the Argentine police regarding the $19,000.00, Mrs. Chiappe allegedly said that her husband, the appellant, had given it to her before they left their house. Immediately after the arrest, the appellant "consented" to the search of the room he and his wife were using in his father-in-law's home, and photographs showing him together with other co-conspirators were seized. These were also admitted into evidence. Despite lengthy discussions on the subject, the Court did not give any limiting instructions to the jury.

It is appellant's contention that the admission of this evidence was an abuse of the Court's discretion under Rule 403, Federal Rules of Evidence.

United States v. Robinson 544 F.2d 611 (2d Cir. 1976).

The probative value of the evidence was minimal, and depended on the jury drawing two quite weak inferences: 1) that the money was in fact proceeds of narcotics transactions and, 2) that the narcotics transactions were part of the conspiracy charged. There is no basis in the evidence from which to draw such inferences. There was no evidence even tending to show that appellant was involved in narcotics activities after February 16, 1968, and there was no evidence that the passport in the name of Bianchi, had at any time been used by anyone in connection with narcotics activities.*

Furthermore, the money was admitted into evidence only on the basis of the admissibility of a statement by appellant's wife that he had given it to her prior to them leaving the home. The Court ruled that pursuant to Rule 801(d)(2)(6)(01), Federal Rules of Evidence, appellant's wife was acting as his agent. The Court based its finding of agency solely on the fact that appellant and the relator were husband and wife, and were walking hand-in-hand at the time of the arrest.

It is axiomatic that agency cannot be proved solely by declarations of the alleged agent, but more must be established by independent proof. The independent proof may be circumstantial, but it must be "substantial." The mere fact of a husband-wife relationship is insufficient to show an agency. There was no proof whatsoever, that Mrs. Chiappe was involved in

*The inferences to be drawn as to passports are equally dependent on an inference on an inference.

U.S. v. Consolidated Laundries Corp., 291 F.2d 563, at 476 (2d Cir. 1961).

4 Wigmore, Evidence §1078 at 126 (3d ed. 1940).

or even knew of any of the alleged drug activities of the appellant.

While it is true that this Circuit has held that large amounts of unexplained cash in connection with evidence of narcotics trafficking on a large scale is admissible to show the doing of an act requiring those means,* such is not the case here. Firstly, there was no evidence whatsoever of any further narcotics activity by appellant after February 16, 1968, so that a pattern of conduct could not be shown. Nor were the items contraband which were clearly indicative of narcotics activity.

Secondly, and most importantly, the Government knew that the 1968 arrest was on suspicion of bank robbery charges--not narcotics--and that after an investigation of one year, the bank robbery case was dropped against appellant, and the $19,000.00 returned to Mrs. Chiappe after a Federal Examining Judge in Argentina found, to his satisfaction, that Mrs. Chiappe was legitimately in possession of the $19,000.00. Moreover, the error is compounded now since there is evidence, not made available to the prosecutor at the trial, that the Police Officer had been lying, and that the search may have been the result of torture. (See Point IV).

The testimony at the trial rested primarily, if not almost solely,

*See United States v. Tramunti, 513 F.2d 1037 (2d Cir. 1975), ($900,000.00 in cash); United States v. Magnano, 543 F.2d 431 (2d Cir. 1976) $500,000.00 connected by testimony.

See United States v. Papadakis, 510 F.2d 287 (2d Cir. 1975), later similar act.

See United States v. Bermudez, 526 F.2d 89 (2d Cir. 1975), implements, scales, lactose with traces of narcotics on them.

on the testimony of Michel Nicoli, an alleged co-conspirator whose credibility was severely put in question.* Thus, the case against appellant was far from "air tight". In fact, the jury deliberated for a period of two full days and at one point--after convicting co-defendant Russo--indicated they could not reach a verdict as to appellant. It was only at about 9:00 p.m. on the second night that the verdict was returned. This is the main factor which distinguishes it from cases already cited, and the doctrine of United States v. Ravich, 421 F.2d 1196 (2d Cir. 1970).

On the other hand, the unfair prejudice suffered by appellant was great. All the evidence did was to bring irrelevant material before the jury which led to inferences which were not provable in this case, namely evidence of bad character, which was not placed in issue by the appellant.

As Wigmore has noted:

The deep tendency of human nature to punish, not because our victim is guilty this time, but because he is a bad man and may as well be condemned now that he is caught is a tendency which cannot fail to operate with a jury, in or out of court.

*Among other things, Nicoli admitted that he had received a sentence of three years jail and six years special probation under a plea to cover three indictments; that he was responsible for importing 800 Kilos of heroin into the United States; that the government would not send him to France, where he was under sentence of death; that he had been paid $500-700 a month for several years for his services.

1 Wigmore, Evidence §57 at 436 (2d. Ed. 1940).

This is a particular difficulty which arises where the proffered evidence connects a party with a highly charged public issue, such as organized crime, or, as in this case, international drug trafficking. As if to add insult to injury, the movie The French Connection was shown on television during the trial, and five (5) jurors admitted watching it. Not only did the movie illustrate in detail activities such as those testified to by Michel Nicoli, but the main courier in the movie was in fact a character named "Nicoli".

The confusion and diversion of the jury was further compounded by that fact that, in order to counter the inference advocated by the Government, the defense was forced into the dilemma of arguing that the money was seized as proceeds of a bank robbery being investigated by the arresting officers.

The Court compounded the error by specifically instructing the jury that this post conspiracy evidence was admissible against appellant (T. 941), instructing them as to the effect of Mrs. Chiappe's statement (T. 957), and specifically permitting the jury to infer from the evidence that appellant was engaged in subsequent narcotics activities after the termination of the conspiracy (T. 964), and that appellant was arrested for narcotics activities, and that both he and his wife were searched for proceeds of narcotics.*

*The Court stated to counsel that it was a strange defense to a narcotics crime that the defendant is not a narcotics dealer but a bank robber. However, this is the crux of the argument. The Court, knowing what the true facts were, put counsel in the horns of this exact dilemma by its ruling (T. 991). This in light of the fact that no character evidence would be offered (T. 992).

The prosecutor, of course, made ample use of this evidence in the closing portion of his summation, arguing that this evidence was the proceeds of the final narcotics transaction and that this was corroboration of the truth of Nicoli's testimony (T. 1044, 1057, 1106-1108).

The admission of this evidence unduly prejudiced the jury in a very close case affecting the judgment and denied appellant a fair trial.

POINT IV

BECAUSE THE GOVERNMENT DELIBERATELY
FAILED TO PRODUCE DOCUMENTS RELATIVE TO THE TESTIMONY OF A CRUCIAL WITNESS,
APPELLANT WAS DENIED A FAIR TRIAL.

By a motion dated January 20, 1977 and supplemented on February 28, 1977*, appellant moved the trial court for a new trial based on documents just received from Argentina which were known to the prosecutor before the trial, and which were never produced by him for the defense. On March 4, 1977 the District Court denied the motion without a hearing.

A. THE NEWLY RECEIVED EVIDENCE

Documents have now been received from Argentina which demonstrate that a key prosecution witness at the trial, Police Officer Jesus Borsalino of the Buenos Aires Argentina Police Department, testified falsely before both the Court at a hearing and before the jury at the trial in chief.

These documents, which are certified copies of the official records of the Court, and most of which are reports issued by the Examining Federal Judge, Miguel Inchausti, demonstrate the following:

- a) The date of the arrest of Francois Chiappe was May 15, 1968.
- b) One Lucien Sarti, a co-defendant, was also arrested on May 15, 1968 in the same house where Chiappe was arrested when Chiappe's birthday was being celebrated.
- c) That Francois Chiappe was in fact subject to torture during the days of May 15 and May 16, 1968, and that he still bore the physical evidence of this torture on May 27, 1968.

*Record items 50, 51.

d) That Francois Chiappe did in fact complain to the Argentine Court of having been tortured.

e) That Francois Chiappe was held incommunicado for 10 days pursuant to his arrest on May 15, 1968.

f) That the robbery case against Mr. Chiappe was provisionally dismissed on February 26, 1969 when he was released from prison.

g) That the moneys seized from Mr. Chiappe and his wife at the time of arrest, along with a plaid hat and a pair of shoes, were returned to Mrs. Chiappe.

h) That the $19,000.00 in U.S. currency was returned to Mrs. Chiappe because she proved to the Federal Judge that she had been legitimately in possession of it.

All of the above facts were either not mentioned by the witness Borsalino, or were affirmatively denied by him during his testimony. Furthermore, cross-examination on some of these points was precluded by the Court since counsel could not demonstrate a good-faith basis for the asking of these questions. The jury was further instructed to draw no inferences from the asking of the questions.

B. THE DOCUMENTS WERE KNOWN TO THE PROSECUTOR AND WERE SUPPRESSED.

During the course of the hearing held during the trial, it was brought out by Judge Nikleson that the file in question was examined by Mr. Schlam, the Assistant United States Attorney who prosecuted this case, together with Judge Nikleson in Buenos Aires, Argentina (766-69)*. Assistant U.S. Attorney Peter Schlam also stated on the record that he personally examined the robbery case file in Argentina (740-41). In fact, several exhibits removed from the file were introduced into evidence during this trial through the testimony of Police Officer Borsalino, specifically a false passport and identification card, several photographs, and a photograph of the $19,000.00 in U.S. currency allegedly seized from Mrs. Chiappe at the time of the arrest.

*All references are to the transcript of the trial.

Clearly, the prosecutor was aware of the contents of the robbery case file, having examined it in the presence of an Argentine Federal Judge, and having selectively removed several items from it for presentation into evidence at the trial. Additionally, during the preparation of the witnesses for testimony, such material should have been reviewed by the witness and the Assistant United States Attorney.

It is equally clear that there was a specific request for the materials in the Argentine robbery file. This request was made not only by Mr. Chiappe's trial counsel (840, 982, 983), but also by the presiding judge himself (836, 840). No records were ever produced by the Assistant U.S. Attorney, and the cross-examination of Police Officer Borsalino and Judge Nikleson resumed without them, both at the hearing and at the trial in chief.

Significantly, the defendant Francois Chiappe testified at the hearing (T. 812-851) that the arrest took place on May 15, 1968, his birthday, that he was tortured for two days by means of electricity at which time Borsalino was present, that he had complained of the torture to the Argentine Court, and that he did not consent to any search.

Because the Court did not credit any of the testimony of defendant Chiappe, and did credit the testimony of Police Officer Borsalino, the evidence was admitted into evidence, and Borsalino was permitted to testify before the jury.*

In cases where suppression of evidence has been deliberate or where there was a failure to disclose evidence whose high value to the defense could not have escaped the prosecutor's attention, the Courts have uniformly held that a new trial should be granted since almost by definition the evidence is material. United States v. Keogh, 391 F.2d 138 (2d Cir. 1968). It is further settled that the suppression of evidence by the prosecution favorable to the accused upon request violates due process where the evidence is material either to guilt or to punishment irrespective of the good faith or bad faith of the prosecution. Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963).

The request in this case was very specific, and was made not only by trial counsel, but by the Court itself. The prosecution knew of the defendant's request. Since it failed to honor this even in good faith, it has only itself to blame.

*Significantly, Borsalino testified that he held Chiappe for the authorized detention period before bringing him before a judge (T. 692). Judge Nikleson testified that this authorized detention period is 48 hours (T. 758).

The third category of cases outlined by the Keogh Court, where suppression was not deliberate, and there was no request, does not apply to the facts of this case.

It is further submitted that in this case the prosecution remained silent and allowed Police Officer Borsalino to give deliberately false testimony before the Court and the jury, and failed to correct it. Having examined the file in Argentina in the presence of a Federal Judge, the fact of the torture of Chiappe and the date of the arrest, as well as the return of the $19,000.00 and the reasons for it, could not have escaped the attention of the prosecutor. What happened in this trial is tantamount to the practices condemned by courts as incompatible with the rudimentary demands of justice. Giglio v. U.S. 405 U.S. 150 (1972). See also U.S. v. Napue, 360 U.S. 264 (1959); and U.S. v. Seijo, 514 F.2d 1357 (2d Cir. 1975).

Borsalino's deliberate, false denials of facts which the prosecutor knew--or should have known--were false and which he did not take steps to correct, effectively foreclosed defense counsel's inquiry into these sensitive areas.*

Not only were the deliberate falsehoods of P.O. Borsalino not corrected by the prosecutor, resulting in his repetition of the same before the jury, but by failing to produce the file as requested by defense counsel and the Court, counsel and the Court were precluded from impeaching the witness and bringing out his false testimony. It is submitted that for this reason alone, defendant is entitled to a new trial. The verdict is not saved because other competent evidence would support it. Columbe v. Conn. 367 U.S. 56 (1961) cited with approval in U.S. v. Agurs, 96 S.Ct. 2392 (1976).

*Borsalino specifically denied that Chiappe had been tortured by anyone (T. 733).

C. THE EVIDENCE SUPPRESSED WAS MATERIAL.

Under the Brady holding, a finding of materiality of the evidence is required. The Courts have uniformly held that when the reliability of a given witness may well be determinative of guilt or innocence, nondisclosure of evidence relating to credibility rather than substance falls within the rule. A new trial is required if "the false testimony count...in any reasonable likelihood have affected the judgment of the jury..." Napue, supra, at 271.

As the Napue Court stated at page 269:

"The jury's estimate of the truthfulness and reliability of a given witness may well be determinative of guilt or innocence, and it is upon such subtle factors as the possible interest of the witness in testifying falsely that a defendant's life or liberty may depend."

See also U.S. v. Gerard, 491 F.2d 1300 (9th Cir. 1974), U.S. v. Puco, 338 F.Supp. 1252 (S.D.N.Y. 1974) aff'd. 461 F.2d 846, aff'd. 493 F.2d 1399 (2d Cir. 1974), Corpus v. Beto, 469 F.2d 953 (5th Cir. 1973). U.S. v. Badalmante and Yagid, 507 F.2d 12 (2d Cir. 1974). See also ABA Standards for Discovery and Procedure Before Trial §2.1 (1970); ABA Standard Relating to the Prosecution and Defense Function §3.11 (1971).

The significance of the documents just received from the Argentine file is evident on their face. Their importance as tools for impeachment is obvious, and their importance to the defense could not have escaped the prosecution.

It is interesting to note, that in his responding affidavit, the United States Attorney does not present documents to disprove those submitted by appellant. Rather, he chooses to argue their interpretation, dates, etc. The fact of the matter is that the declarations they contain as to the torture and the dates thereof, were made before the Federal Examining Judge in Argentina who was in charge of the case (Hon. Miguel Inchausti). If they had been false, such would immediately have been determined. Moreover, the examination of appellant--which supported his charge of torture--was ordered by this same judge. To this day the government has not seen fit to produce the file for examination.

Without the testimony of Police Officer Borsalino, it is highly doubtful whether Chiappe would have been convicted at all. The testimony of the informant and co-conspirator, Michel Nicoli, was highly suspect and subject to serious attacks on cross-examination.* Hence, it became imperative to

*During Nicoli's re-direct, while the prosecutor was attempting to rehabilitate the witness, the Court, in a grossly unfair manner took over the rehabilitation of the witness in the following manner (T. 631-632):

THE COURT: Did you intend to conceal the identify of Francois Chiappe?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE COURT: Did you testify before this jury that in February 1967 you and Mr. Rossi and one Pugnacci met in Madrid and planned and executed a plan for the importing of nine kilograms of heroin into the United States?

(Footnote Continued)

THE INTERPRETER: How many kilos?

THE COURT: Nine.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE COURT: And did you in one of those statements 3500-4 and/or 3500-5 tell the agents that only you and Mr. Pugnacci imported six kilos.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE COURT: And can you explain to the jury the reason for the different versions, one for the jury and one that you gave to the DEA agents.

THE WITNESS: Yes, I said only six kilos in order to be able to keep Francois Rossi out of it.

THE COURT: All right.

Furthermore, the Court suggested to the prosecutor the line of redirect examination as follows (T. 645):

THE COURT: Even based on that, that he had no employment, I think that the Government has a right to show why he had no employment. He was busy and occupied--because I know it. Because he came before me so many times testifying. He couldn't hold a job. And you tried to make him out as a welfare cheat. I expected the Government to offer evidence to show he was engaged in convicting defendants. And that's why he couldn't hold a job.

MR. GALLINA: Your honor--

THE COURT: And when he was paid $700 a month, that may sound like a big sum of money to the jury, but why shouldn't the Government be able to show that he had to be here three times a week, three hours a day, that he couldn't hold the job and that the $700 a month was payment for his time, not his testimony, his time. If it was his testimony, the Government underpaid him. But his time. I will allow that, of course. I couldn't understand why you didn't ask the questions until now.

bolster his testimony with an unimpeachable source, which the government presented in the form of Police Officer Borsalino. Through his testimony some of the most devastating items of evidence were put before the jury, such as a false I.D. card, a false passport, photographs, and the $19,000.00 in U.S. currency which the prosecutor was permitted to argue to the jury as having been the proceeds of the last narcotics transaction testified to by Nicoli, with the specific sanction of the Court (T. 964, 967, 973, 1076-77).

Had it been possible to attack the credibility of Borsalino and demonstrate his deliberate false testimony--which was impossible without these documents--the jury would have disregarded his testimony in its entirety. The showing of the lack of credibility of a Police Officer, of course, would cause Nicoli's testimony to be that much more suspect. See United States v. Fried, 486 F.2d 201 (2d Cir. 1974).

More importantly, had the materials been available for examination and impeachment purposes, the evidence may never have gotten to the jury at all. The District Court's decision to admit the evidence was based on the fact that it credited the officer and discredited the defendant. Had the material been available, the tables would have been turned and the evidence held inadmissible as the product of torture.

The U.S. Attorney's argument that appellant at no time denied his link to the evidence seized through Officer Borsalino is indeed specious. The question of admissibility of illegally searched evidence has never depended on its probative value. Secondly, the fact that an examining magistrate (Federal Judge) of Argentina had determined that Mrs. Chiappe was entitled to a return of the money means that it was not contraband, either for purposes of a bank robbery or drug trafficking. It was grossly unfair to permit the prosecutor to argue an inference to the jury that the $19,000.00 were narcotics proceeds, knowing full well that the money had been returned to Mrs. Chiappe as being legitimately hers.

This case does not involve the issue of whether additional evidence tending to further impeach the credibility of a witness whose character and credibility have already been shown to be questionable was withheld. See U.S. v. Rosner, 516 F.2d 269 (2d Cir. 1975). The Courts have held, however, that despite the presence of other impeaching material available to a jury, where further material affecting a witnesses credibility may have created sufficient doubt in a juror's mind, nondisclosure deprived the defendant of a fair trial. U.S. v. Seijo, 514 F.2d 1357 (2d Cir. 1975); U.S. v. Kaplan, 470 F.2d 100 (7th Cir. 1972). Here there was no basis for impeachment whatsoever at the time the witness testified since the file was not made available. Additionally, the jury was specifically instructed by the Court on numerous occasions that the mere asking of a question was not evidence of anything, and that no adverse inference may be drawn from the asking of a question and its denial by the witness. Moreover, trial counsel was precluded from inquiring into these areas because he had not established any good faith basis for asking the questions.

The end result was that a distinguished looking gentleman in a crisp uniform, who had 25 years of experience and was now a commanding officer was permitted to give totally unimpeachable testimony, and was permitted to deny facts which have now been proven false. Yet, because the date of arrest was not the 17th but rather the 15th of May, 1968, and because of the demonstrable torture of Chiappe, the jury was not permitted to consider his deliberate lies and the strong motive he had to lie, having been one of the persons involved in the torture of Chiappe on May 15 and 16, 1968. Not only did the suppressed evidence demonstrate the deliberate falsehoods and motive to lie, but it would have rendered the uncorroborated substance of his remaining testimony suspect, such as the consent to search, the alleged statements of Mrs. Chiappe, and the finding of the I. D., passport, photograph, and the $19,000.00. The jury simply did not have all the facts before them and were effectively misled in evaluating his testimony.

In fact, the trial judge-addressing himself to questions by counsel to Borsalino regarding possible torture of appellant--said he was not interested in counsel's "nonsense," (T. 695), specifically warned counsel "not to dare" to ask questions regarding torture on the pain of being held in contempt (T. 696), and walked off the bench during counsel's offer of proof, saying he "won't waste time." (T. 698).

Now, with the acquisition of some of the documents from Argentina, it becomes obvious that this line of questioning was neither "nonsense", nor a "waste of time." Indeed, the prejudice appellant suffered as a result of the frustration of this line of questioning and the documents supporting it, is incalculable.

D. THE DEFENDANT WAS PREJUDICED

The prosecutor was duty bound to produce the file before the trial. Certainly, he was obligated to produce it when it was specifically requested. The purpose of this duty is not simply to correct an imbalance of advantage, where the prosecution may surprise the defense at trial with new evidence, as it happened in this case. Rather, it is also to make a trial a search for the truth informed by all relevant material, much of which, because of the imbalance in investigative resources, will be exclusively in the hands of the government. See U.S. v. Bryant, 439 F.2d 642 (D.C. Cir. 1971). Such disclosure must be made at such time as to allow the defense to use the favorable material effectively in the preparation and presentation of its case. U.S. v. Pollack, 534 F.2d 964 (D.C. Cir. 1976).

The facts of this case further exacerbate the lack of timely disclosure. Here we are dealing with the contents of a file located in an Argentine Court thousands of miles away. Present counsel for Mr. Chiappe has had to depend on others 5,000 miles away, unfamiliar with the case, to look through this file and search for specific materials to answer my specific questions. Counsel can scarcely wonder what other materials may be contained in this file of over 300 pages of potential value, which could have been skillfully developed at trial.

It is curious indeed, that the prosecutor in this case went through the enormous expense of, among other things, bringing an Argentine Judge and Police Officer to testify at the trial, but chose not to bring along a file whose production is mandated not only by due process, but by the direction of Rule 16 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure and 18 U.S.C. §3500.

Because of the deliberate suppression of the evidence, and the failure to produce it when specifically requested by trial counsel and the Court, the defendant was denied a fair trial. Without the materials since received, effective cross-examination--indeed, any cross-examination--of Police Officer Borsalino was effectively precluded.

In cases of nondisclosure of Brady material, especially where it may have been occasioned by prosecutorial misconduct, Appellate Courts have often taken a prophylactic approach such as the comments of Judge Friendly in his concurrence and dissent in U.S. v. Morell, 524 F.2d 550 (2d Cir. 1975); see also Woodcock v. Amaral, 511 F.2d 985 (1st Cir. 1974).

Francois Chiappe complains that his trial did not have the fundamental fairness he was entitled to under due process of law. Here, the basic unfairness was occasioned by the prosecutor's failure to produce the court file from Argentina, even after it was specifically requested, and his taking a hear-no-evil, see-no-evil, speak-no-evil attitude toward a major witness in the case, who testified falsely.

To label this suppression intentional or negligent is unnecessary. It is enough that the prosecution was the active and effective cause of the nondisclosure of the evidence. Moreover, the request was, after all, for discovery which was basic and not extraordinary. Yet, in all probability, had the evidence been available, Mr. Chiappe would not be in the position he finds himself in today.

CONCLUSION

BECAUSE THE APPELLANT WAS DENIED THE
RUDIMENTS OF BASIC FAIRNESS DURING ALL
STAGES OF THE PROCEEDINGS AGAINST HIM,
THE JUDGMENT SHOULD BE VACATED AND THE INDICTMENT DISMISSED.

Respectfully submitted,

JURIS G. CEDERBAUMS
Attorney for Appellant,
Francois Chiappe
30 Broad Street
New York, New York 10004

Received copy of Appellant's Brief
& Appendix on 5/6/77.
M. Schlam